

Al- I-B-038 Mann Frame Farmhouse
Mann Rd.
Bellegrove, Allegany Co. MD
Eligible, Criterion C

This two-story frame farmhouse comprises a three bay by two bay main section facing north and an ell running to the south. A one story hip roofed porch covers the front of the house, another porch appears at the end of the ell, and an enclosed porch fills the corner between the main house and the ell. Both sections of the house are covered by gable roofs clad in corrugated metal. German siding sheathes the house which stands on a stone foundation. A brick chimney rises from the center of the ell and another is located at the exterior corner between the main section and the ell. The main entrance is located in the center of the front. The 3/1 sash windows are framed in plain flat boards topped by a simple molding. An exterior cellar entrance opens under the east end. A German-sided balustrade connects square porch posts. A large bank barn of wood frame construction is located south of the house. The gable end faces north. The main level of the barn is reached from the west side. The lower level, built in concrete block, has openings on the north end. A shed-roofed addition covers the east side. A frame wagon shed is situated between the two buildings. This farm retains its scenic setting of rolling meadows. The long driveway from the north is lined on the west by a windbreak of mature Norway spruce. This line of trees continues along the house to the wagon shed.

Filmore Mann, a descendent of David Mann who owned this farm in the mid nineteenth century, built the Mann Frame Farmhouse in the 1870s. The farm is still owned by the Manns. This building is a well-preserved example of a substantial late nineteenth century farmhouse. It appears that some changes such as relocation of the main chimney, addition of 3/1 sash windows, and rebuilding of the front porch may date from the early twentieth century. These well built features are also of historical significance.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Mann Frame Farmhouse is located on Mann Road near Bellegrove.

This building originally consisted of a rectangular structure two stories tall and three bays wide. Wall construction is frame with germansiding. The low foundation is a random rubble stone with a plain water table. The gable flank roof is covered with tin. Eaves consist of a cornice, fascia, and frieze on the gable ends. Wall features include cornerboards. One large outside end brick chimney is corbeled. The main entrance in the center of the northern facade and the windows are pedimented. One over one light windows are nailed with wooden lugsills. Ventilators in the gable ends are also pedimented. A hip roofed porch on the north has tapered square posts.

A large frame addition with germansiding is on the south. Pedimented windows are in pairs and single three over one lights. A partially enclosed hip roofed wraparound veranda is on the south and west. A corbeled brick chimney is in the center of the addition.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Mann Frame Farmhouse is located near Bellegrove in the far northeastern area of Allegany County. The house was built in the 1870's by Filmore Mann.⁽¹⁾ He was a descendant of David Mann, who owned all of the ridge now serviced by Mann's Road. David Mann was born in Pennsylvania in 1812 and settled in Washington County, while owning this farm land in Allegany County. David Mann had twenty-two children from two wives, and his descendants still own this farm on Mann's Road.⁽²⁾

"The eastern part of Allegany County between Cumberland and the dividing line for both West Virginia and Washington County... is rugged territory."⁽³⁾ The terrain is mountainous and rocky. There are no major industries in this area so farming has been the only way to make a living here. Even this industry has been "a risky undertaking at best."⁽⁴⁾

This house is in good condition and is a reminder of the determination of a farming family to make a living in this isolated area of Allegany County.
